NYBERG PETITION ATTACKED

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

EVERY so often a community gets "steamed up" to a point where the whole population takes time off from business, gets aboard a special train, goes somewhere, stays out all night, is dog-tired the next day, swears it would never do it again—but had a peach of a time! This is the feeling in Hope as the time draws near for departure of the Football Special which will carry Hope's rooting section to the Hope-Pine Bluff football game Friday.

Roosevelt Shaves Landon's Lead as Digest Vote Grows

West and South Begin to Be Heard From in Vast Straw Balloting

LANDON GETS EAST

He Is Polling Heavy Majorities Over President in Eight States

Roosevelt cuts Landon's lead slightly to approximately 3 1/2 to 2 as new returns are reported from three more southern states and one more farm state in The Literary Digest's national Presidential poll.

The vote tallied from thirteen states gives Landon 153,360 to Roosevelt's 88,815 and Lemke's 10,374 out of a total of more than a quarter of a million.

Third Returns of the 1936 Presidential Poll
From the Literary Digest of September 13, 1936
	Landon	Roosevelt	Lemke
Arkansas	1,023	3,391	43
Indiana	7,353	4,881	356
Iowa	14,942	9,133	1,231
Louisiana	742	2,197	139
Maine	7,661	3,465	278
Minnesota	13,598	9,352	2,417
Mississippi	244	2,163	10
N. Jersey	20,500	11,045	927
N. York	45,355	16,521	2,637
Ohio	12,593	7,924	1,137
Oklahoma	2,391	6,827	37
Penn.	25,750	11,501	1,013
Texas	1,268	4,615	39
Totals	153,360	88,815	10,374

The new states reported in a copyrighted article in the current issue of the magazine include Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Iowa.

Strong in South

The southern states give the President whopping pluralities—more than 3 to 1 in Arkansas, nearly 3 to 1 in Louisiana and almost 9 to 1 in Mississippi.

Town votes for Landon over 3 to 2 in the latest poll returns.

The addition of over 150,000 votes to the previous week's returns increases Landon's lead in Indiana, New Jersey, New York, Ohio and Texas, while the voting in Maine, Minnesota and Pennsylvania is within a fraction of the previous week's tabulation.

Oklahoma increases its plurality for Roosevelt sharply.

An analysis of how the same voters voted in 1932 shows that 27,288 who voted for Roosevelt four years ago will vote for Landon and that 13,726 who were for Hoover in the last Presidential election will switch this year to vote for President Roosevelt.

On a division in the Electoral College vote from the ballots received so far from thirteen states Landon would receive 166 votes. Roosevelt 62 and Lemke none.

Peddler Ordinance of City of Hope Upheld by Court

Chancellor Bacon Rules for City Against El Dorado Baking Co.

COMPANY APPEALS

Decision Dissolves Injunction That Had Restrained City Officials

The City of Hope won a victory Thursday when Chancellor Judge Pratt P. Bacon handed down an opinion holding the city's peddlers ordinance valid.

The decision dissolves a temporary injunction which for the past three months restrained the city from collecting tax from the El Dorado Baking company, a corporation with headquarters at El Dorado, but distributing bread in Hope to retail dealers through its agents.

The baking company appealed to the Arkansas Supreme Court.

The City of Hope, a municipal corporation, was represented in the case by City Attorney W. S. Atkins. The baking company was represented by Attorney E. F. McFaddin of Hope.

The temporary injunction granted by Judge Bacon about three months ago resulted from the arrest of an employee of the baking company while distributing bread in Hope.

Attorney McFaddin contended that the city's ordinance was not as broad as the definition given a peddler under the state law, and therefore was void.

Mr. McFaddin also contended that the baking company, itself, cannot be a peddler, for its nature is such that it can not travel from house to house or place to place offering its goods for sale and it must, therefore, act by or through its agents.

Another contention by Mr. McFaddin was that the bread was being sold to retail merchants only, and not direct to the consumer and therefore those selling the bread could not be classified as peddlers.

Mr. McFaddin also argued that if the ordinance exempts the man who manufactures his own product—it would also apply to the agents of the manufacturer.

$50,000 Fire Loss for Bearden, Ark.

Blaze Wipes Out 8 Business Buildings in Ouachita County Town

BEARDEN, Ark.—(AP)—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed eight buildings in the Bearden business district early Thursday with a loss estimated at $50,000.

The blaze threatened the Ouachita county town's entire business area before the Camden fire department arrived and halted its spread.

Night Marshal Brown discovered the fire shortly before midnight in the rear of the Stuckey grocery.

Ozan Negro Baby Burns to Death

The year-old baby of George Carrigan, negro tenant farmer of near Ozan, was burned to death late Tuesday afternoon when fire destroyed the Carrigan home.

The baby had been left in the care of two other small negro children. All were said to have been asleep when the fire broke out.

The older children were aroused to find the house in flames. Their parents were picking cotton a half mile away and knew nothing of the fire until the older children reached home.

This is the second child of George Carrigan to lose his life by fire, another burned to death in a fire which destroyed his home several years ago.

Only One Change in Faculty for School—Two Bus Routes

The 1936-37 session of the Washington High School will open next Monday morning, September 21.

Faculty for the session will remain unchanged with the exception of the coach and science instructor.

Place will be filled by Rufus D. Wolff of Bingen, who takes the vacancy left by the resignation of Norvel W. Kelly, who has been connected with the Washington school for the past three years.

Mr. Kelly will be principal of the school at Altheimer, Ark., this session.

Other members of the faculty follow: Mrs. C. C. Stuart, principal; Miss Katherine Holt, Miss Julia Bearden, Miss Mary Catts, and Mrs. L. L. Pilton.

The WPA work on the school campus which was begun last year has been completed during the summer under the direction of A. P. Bailey, and the campus and facilities of the school are now equal to any in this part of the state.

A complete new waterworks system has been installed since school closed last year. New sanitary facilities are now available, drinking fountains are installed and all modern conveniences ready for this year's school session.

The school campus has been leveled, terraces thrown up, new basketball courts constructed, all in addition to the work which has been completed at the front of the building at the time school closed last spring.

BETTER DISLOCATE BOTH SIDES OF JAW THAN ONE

PASADENA, Calif.—(AP)—If you must dislocate your jaw while yawning, it's better to dislocate both sides than just one.

Dr. E. A. Gunning evolved this dictum after treating two Pasadena citizens in as many days for dislocated jaws they acquired while yawning.

For instance, Elmo Smalley, 27, dislocated both sides, and it was practically no trick at all for Dr. Gunning to snap the Smalley jaw back in place at the emergency hospital. But the other yawner dislocated one side and had to be sent to the regular hospital.

Apparently these are Sunday-go-to-meeting cows. They were out the preceding Sunday, September 6—but on a week-day The Star's camera hunted for them in vain. But on Sunday the 13th they were there again!

Nude Dancers in Jury Room, Alleged

Federal Judge Orders Investigation of Illinois "Whoopee" Party

PEORIA, Ill.—Aroused by evidence that a "whoopee" party, in which two nude women took part, was held by a federal court jury considering a liquor conspiracy case, Federal Judge J. Earle Major Wednesday ordered a juror, bailiff, deputy United States marshal, and two women to appear before him on contempt of court charges.

It was while sentencing 11 men, found guilty by the "whoopee" party jury, that the jurist ordered Henry Triebel, Peoria juror, Deputy Marshal A. T. Curry, Peoria, and Bailiff Ernest T. Young, Springfield, Bee Lane and Patsy O'Brien to appear before him September 23 and show cause why they should not be cited for contempt.

Women Make Affidavits

Affidavits of the women, whom Judge Major refused to consider, drew the ire of the jurist. They were presented by lawyers for the conspirators in appeal for a new trial.

They related how the women were called to a tavern and from there escorted to the jury's room in the Hotel Pere Marquette, where a "wild" party was held. The women indicated that Triebel and Young took them to the hotel.

"There," they indicated, "they saw about a dozen men, several empty whisky and beer bottles, cracked ice, charged water, etc."

After collecting $1 each from 11 of the men and 25 cents from the others, the affidavits stated, the women danced, and "entertained" the group. One juror, the women claim, acting as host, assisted the women in an immoral dance.

Terming them the main conspirators, Judge Major sentenced David I. Major and Elmer M. Warner, Sam Berg and Ben Adelman of Galesburg to two years imprisonment and fines of $10,000 each—the maximum provided by federal law.

Julius Michaelson, George Cebulko, Al Offerman, Galesburg; Irving Seuhman, Chicago, and Ora L. Fleming and John P. Swayne, Burlington, Ia., were given a year and a day and fined $500 each.

1,810 Signatures Challenged; May Lose Ballot Right

Secretary of State Calls on Attorney General for Ruling

ATTACKED BY SUIT

If List Is Purged, 12,452 Balance Too Few, Attorney Declares

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Secretary of State Ed F. McDonald asked the attorney general Thursday to rule on the sufficiency of the petition for initiating the Nyberg tax limitation amendment proposal.

Attaches of the office of Attorney General Carl J. Bailey indicated that an opinion will not be available until next week.

A formal protest against the sufficiency of the Nyberg petition was filed Thursday morning with the secretary of state by Guy Ansley, Little Rock attorney, who attacked the validity of 1,810 names on the petition.

McDonald said an examination of the petition indicated the protest was well-founded.

Ansley contended that the elimination of these 1,810 names would leave only 12,452 signatures—which would be inadequate to meet the requirements of initiation, and would render the petition inadequate.

Challenge Was Rumored

LITTLE ROCK.—Petitions filed in the secretary of state's office to initiate the so-called Nyberg amendment—to prohibit the legislature from levying taxes without submitting the measure to a vote of the people—contain hundreds of irregularities, it was charged in a statement issued Wednesday by Senator Richard B. Thompson of Eureka Springs.

Senator Thompson, co-sponsor of the Hall sales tax act of 1935, said he discovered the irregularities when he came to Little Rock to gather information on the tax limitation amendment.

He said that he had been informed that the measure with Governor Futrell's signature and the signatures of the members of the Nyberg amendment, and the Rottenberry initiative act, which proposes use of all sales tax proceeds to pay old age pensions up to $50 a month, have been checking petitions several weeks, but no indication was given until Wednesday that irregularities had been found.

Secretary of State Ed F. McDonald said he had not personally checked the petitions but had been informed that the measure with Governor Futrell's signature and the signatures of the members of the Nyberg amendment, and the Rottenberry initiative act, which proposes use of all sales tax proceeds to pay old age pensions up to $50 a month, have been checking petitions several weeks, but no indication was given until Wednesday that irregularities had been found.

If there appears to be grounds for the contention that the petitions are irregular or have not been signed by a sufficient number of qualified electors, I shall ask the attorney general for an opinion as to my duties in the matter and shall be guided by his instructions," Mr. McDonald said.

It was learned that a Little Rock law firm has prepared a petition for filing in the Arkansas Supreme Court questioning the sufficiency of the petitions for the Nyberg amendment. Filing of the suit has been held up pending further investigation of signatures and because of the possibility that the secretary of state might find that the petitions are insufficient.

Either proponents or opponents of an initiated measure may ask the Supreme Court to review the secretary of state's decision as to sufficiency of petitions.

The Family Doctor

These Common Drugs Are Useful and Safe as Remedies for Family

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygieia, the Health Magazine.

Besides the drugs already mentioned as being suitable for the family medicine chest, it is well to have available a small bottle of glycerine. This is useful for many purposes.

Most commonly, a few drops of glycerine, warmed so as not to burn when tested on the inside of the wrist, are used in the ear as a comforting application in earache.

Bicarbonate of soda is useful in many ways. When added to the bath, it is helpful for itching of the skin. As has already been mentioned, it may be added to gargles for relief of irritation and for removal of mucus.

For a greater number of American business men, it is the common accompaniment of a quick lunch for the relief of what they call "sour stomach."

Nevertheless, it should be pointed out that the regular treatment of this condition with bicarbonate of soda is a dangerous practice, since the pain and the belching of acid material after eating may be signs of a beginning stage of the stomach.

Aromatic spirits of ammonia is a home remedy useful in bringing about recovery after fainting spells. It may be inhaled or taken internally, one-half teaspoonful in water.

Remember, however, that a fainting spell may be a sign of a weakened heart or a serious change in the circulation of the blood, and is not to be considered lightly.

Then there are ointments of various kinds now widely promoted for many purposes. There are cold cream, zinc oxide ointment, vaseline, and mixtures of these substances with others to be used for irritations of the skin, for burning, cleansing, rubbing, and chafing, and for similar purposes.

Most medicine cabinets will have a styptic powder, which is applied to small cuts after shaving.

Finally, there has come into popular use an oily spray containing liquid petroleum, eucalyptus, and menthol which soothes the mucous membranes of the nose in the presence of the common cold.

Here are the common drugs safe to have in most family medicine chests. Many people, however, will find a variety of preparations useful to suit the individual tastes of the family under various conditions.

It is good advice to have the medicine chest and its contents looked over by the family doctor on occasions so that he may indicate the products that ought to be removed. He may suggest addition of others of greater importance for the individual family.

is throwing away the farmer's domestic market.
Bill Blackett, an advertising man, serves as a Republican master mind for the special stunts. He heads a very large staff of advertising, radio, theatrical, and other radio specialists. The staff prepares free vaudeville skits studded with anti-New Deal wisecracks for any actor who will take them, free anti-New Deal sermons for clergymen, and things like that.
The Republicans are said to be spending at least half a million dollars on billboards—"Vote for Landon and Land a Job."
In New York citizens find themselves being approached by "beggars" who ask for a dime and insist on telling how New Deal policies made them what they are today. Democrats insist these men are in Republican pay and that so are many barbers, hairdressers, and bartenders hired to disseminate anti-New Deal monologs in their contacts with the public.
Blackboards Spread "News"
The Republican "blackboard trick" has annoyed Democrats. That's the one where the national committee provides blackboards for butchers which say prices aren't high, but taxes are. These boards purport to show that when you pay, for example, 45 cents a pound for pork chops you're paying 30 cents for meat and 15 cents for taxes.
The only way Democrats can combat this is to have housewives ask the butchers to explain the tax item, which neither he nor anyone else can do. Then there's the device of sending women around from house to house with two market baskets, purporting to show city housewives how much less they can buy for dollars now than before the New Deal. Democrats are trying to tell the farmers all about this.
In the last few days of the campaign, there will be a direct mail Republican campaign of unprecedented size. Meanwhile, the G. O. P. is ordering pamphlets and leaflets in enormous quantities and boasts that it will have distributed about 30,000,000 Landon sunflowers by election time.
Democrats Busy, Too
The official Democratic propaganda machine at New York headquarters has been slower in getting organized. Most of the things it's doing are also being duplicated by the G. O. P.
Smaller newspapers through the country, for instance, receive clip-cards, cartoon service with mats, and Charlie Michelson's weekly letter. Pamphlets are distributed to voters through state headquarters and county chairmen and sometimes direct through precinct workers.
Democrats expect to distribute between 10 and 12 million buttons, as compared with fewer than nine million in 1932. The official campaign book, primarily for speakers and covering all New Deal phases, is about ready.
A million copies of the party platform will be distributed and there probably will be a couple of dozen propaganda pamphlets eventually, each of which will have a circulation of from 500,000 to 750,000. Michelson has been working on an advertising program, but he won't try to match the republican billboards. He thinks billboards are too expensive and not very effective.

TRANS-PACIFIC FLIGHT

BY DECK MORGAN

© 1936, NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
KAY DUNN, pretty young nurse, applies for a job as stewardess on Overland Airways. In the Overland office she encounters TED GRAHAM, western pilot, who also flies the trans-Pacific route. Largely due to Graham's intervention, she is accepted for a trial period.
Two other girls, DORIS LEEN and ALICE MILLER, are accepted on the same basis.
The three girls begin their preliminary training. Doris is first to win a regular job. Alice surprises the others by announcing her marriage to Chuck Jones, a pilot. Kay is assigned to the western division, flying from Reno to San Francisco. She meets MONTE BLAINE, who is to fly the Pacific route with Ted Graham. Together they watch Graham make a landing in the big trans-Pacific liner. Graham apparently is pleased to see Kay again, though he speaks to her only briefly, then returns to work.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER VIII
KAY awoke with the wish that she might fly down to the beach and find Ted Graham there, happily awaiting her. But it was the sun, streaming through the windows of the Girls' Club, that greeted her when she was wide awake.
"This was her day! One day out of ten she could break the routine of her twice-daily flights as stewardess on the Overland Airways, to spend a day and night in Oakland. Her plane left at 3:05 for her home port of Reno, high up beyond the Sierra Nevada range on the fringe of the desert.
Standing in the shower, she sang. Last night she and Monte Blaine had danced until 3, but she felt completely fresh now after her sleep.
Just then the telephone jingled. Kay frowned and thought, "I'll tell him a thing or two." She wrapped the huge towel about her, went to the telephone and picked up the receiver, saying crossly, "Oh, don't be so tiresome. I was still in the shower."
But it was not Monte's laugh that greeted her; it was Ted Graham's voice.
"Crossed wires," Ted said. "Monte was just in the office and said you were free until this afternoon. I've put him to work and now he's out of the way! But if you want to inspect the Mariner—or—" he hesitated. "I'm driving up to the San Carlos valley to see the kid. You remember I told you about my adopted son, Dickie. When I'm in port I like to snatch him out of the military school and take him up to camp. It's lovely up there. Would you like to go?"
"Oh, I'd love it!" she said. "I can inspect the Mariner any time."
He said, "I'll come by for you in my car."
LATER, at the cabin in the valley, Ted said, "Dickie's mother died when he was born. His father was killed in an airplane crash when Dickie was 3. The kid hasn't had much family life."
Ted wouldn't let Kay do anything. He told her she'd get her dress soiled or a smudge on her face. She sat, watching him prepare their lunch and eyeing him with amusement.
The cooking was simple enough. There were only wieners to boil and coffee to be made. All the rest, a prepared lunch, Ted had brought with him.
But she observed that he knew how to make good coffee. She passed him a compliment that made him blush under his tan.
"I've been baching it for 15 years now—since my wife died. With Jerry Searies, Jerry was my bomber during the war and now he's a mechanic at the home port. Dickie adores him—but that was the trouble. The kid was hanging around the airport too much. That's why I put him in military school."
Ted busied himself with the pots and pans, then turned to her again.
"I'm pretty much of a lone wolf now. I've been living in the air—for the air. Back there—15 years ago—I was terribly in love with my wife. That was when flying was really dangerous. I survived several bad crashes, but she died. I believe, from a succession of shocks caused by the dangers of my job. That's why I never married again."
Kay said nothing. Dickie was watching a family of chipmunks, and they could hear the shrill chatter of the mother and babies high up in a tree. Kay walked away from the fire, toward the little pine grove by the brook.
TED followed, caught up with her, and took her arm. "Do you like me?" he said.
She looked at him and smiled. "Of course I like you."
"There was a time," he said, "when I was impulsive, reckless, but that was a long time ago. Now I simply look straight ahead. This trans-Pacific flight is my life! I've spent five years preparing for it, and I hope to spend the next 10 years flying it. It's changed the slant of my life. I'm living for the air!"
"And for Dickie," she said, smiling.
He laughed. "Yes, I suppose so. Even a pilot has to have some real living."
He looked down at her, and laughed again. His white teeth flashed. He pulled her close to him and kissed her.
"You're inevitable!" he said, and then let her go. They knelt, side by side, to dip the water up from the mountain brook. Kay watched her face shimmering in the water. If Ted could only have read what was going on in her thoughts!
"Don't pay any attention to me," he said, low. "I like you. I think you're a swell girl and have since the moment I first saw you. But I'm looking out for you. You're a lot younger than I am. Get this straight, Kay. I like to pal around with you—but no wedding bells. It isn't fair not to tell you outright. Romance is behind me. I've got my job."
Kay gazed at her features in the water, wondering if Ted could possibly read in them what she felt close to her heart. She was in love with him. For a few moments she couldn't meet his eyes.

Maestri, Orleans Mayor, New Boss

Clerk at 19, Today New Orleans' Largest Property Owner

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—There's no Horatio Alger touch to the success story of New Orleans' new mayor. Although Robert Sidney Maestri became a wealthy property owner before he was 30, it was no effortless, overnight result but a product of years of hard work, thrift and an uncommon judgment of land values.

Twenty-eight years ago Maestri, 19, was earning $7.50 a week keeping books. He sold furniture on the side and put his earnings into real estate. Today he is considered the city's largest property owner.

Entered Politics as Favor
He entered politics 12 years ago as a favor to a friend—Martin Behrman, who had been mayor from 1904 to 1920 and in 1921 was attempting a comeback. With Maestri directing his campaign, Behrman was elected.

Four years later a fiery young lawyer named Huey P. Long had just been elected governor. Between Long and Maestri developed a friendship probably closer than between Long and any of his other associates.

When a decision was to be made, "Colonel Bob" put in the background at the conference of Long's lieutenants, appraised the situation from every angle and quietly passed his advice to "the Kingfish." Long respected Maestri's political judgment.

Succeeded Long
Long's death elevated Maestri to leadership of the powerful Louisiana machine. He is credited with making young Dick Leche governor and with ironing out differences that threatened the organization.

Under Leche peace was made between New Orleans and the city administration. The legislature returned to the city self-governing and taxing powers taken from it when Long was punishing his enemy Mayor T. Semmes Walmesley.

Walmesley, in accordance with his promise to resign as mayor whenever the city's local authority had been restored, stepped out. Maestri stepped in.

Smaller newspapers through the country, for instance, receive clip-cards, cartoon service with mats, and Charlie Michelson's weekly letter. Pamphlets are distributed to voters through state headquarters and county chairmen and sometimes direct through precinct workers.

Democrats expect to distribute between 10 and 12 million buttons, as compared with fewer than nine million in 1932. The official campaign book, primarily for speakers and covering all New Deal phases, is about ready.

A million copies of the party platform will be distributed and there probably will be a couple of dozen propaganda pamphlets eventually, each of which will have a circulation of from 500,000 to 750,000. Michelson has been working on an advertising program, but he won't try to match the republican billboards. He thinks billboards are too expensive and not very effective.

A day is too long to be spent in vain—Some good should come as the hours go by;
Some tangled maze may be made plain,
Some lowered glance may be raised on high;
And life is too short to be spoiled like this.

If only a prelude, it may be sweet;
Let us bind together its threads of bliss,
And nourish the flowers around our feet.—Selected.

The Service Class of the First Christian Sunday school entertained the men's and women's classes on Wednesday evening at a very delightful steak fry at Fair park. ## Romance (?) Enjoys a Premiere Appearance of comedian Charles Chaplin and attractive Paulette Goddard, as shown in top photo, and Mary Pickford with Charles (Buddy) Rogers, lower photo, at a premiere in Hollywood bowl the other night, didn't exactly stir up a new crop of romantic rumors about the two couples, but it did give Talkietown another peg for speculation. Recently Chaplin, ever evasive about his personal affairs, toured the Orient with Miss Goddard and returned neither confirming nor denying marriage. Buddy Rogers continues to be seen with the former Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, Sr.

Hempstead Home Agent

By MELVA BULLINGTON

Young Pullets

Young pullets should be placed in the laying house before they start laying since moving the birds, after production has started, it quite likely is to cause them to molt.

Hempstead county farm women have also found that proper housing has much to do with the success of the poultry flock. According to S. A. Moore, Extension poultryman, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, at least 4 square feet of floor space is needed for each bird, although this space may be slightly reduced for Leghorns or other light breeds. When the pullets are crowded, any possible saving in housing space will be overcome by an increase in disease and lower production, he points out.

Adequate roosting space will also reduce disease and is necessary for profitable production. Mr. Moore recommends that roosts be placed at least 12 inches apart, and allow 8 to 12 inches in length for each bird.

Garden "Cleanup"

Garden "cleanup" time has started in Hempstead county, says Miss Bullington, home demonstration agent, pointing out that planting of fall vegetables isn't the only necessary work for the gardener at this time of year.

Cid stems and stalks, left after the garden has been harvested, are harboring spots for insects and troublesome diseases, according to Claude Woolsey, Extension horticulturist, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture. The stems of such vegetables as cabbage, beans, and tomatoes must be pulled up and burned, and the finer refuse, such as stems and leaves are raked up and destroyed.

That part of the garden in which no winter vegetables are to be planted may be plowed and planted to oats, wheat, rye, or some other winter cover crop. This will make grazing for the chickens, assist in destroying insects and diseases, and will also help maintain the fertility of the soil by preventing leaching and washing during the winter rains, Mr. Woolsey points out.

largest vote in Minnesota, about 9.5 per cent of the state total to date.

In Louisiana, Iowa and New York the Union candidate gets between four and five per cent of each state's total and in Ohio he is shown receiving about 5.5 per cent of the total vote. In the other eight states his followers range from 2.8 to less than 1 per cent of the local balloting.

Thomas, the Socialist candidate, receives a total of 1,100 votes out of the 254,718 total vote returned from the thirteen states.

An analysis of how the present Lenoire voters voted in 1932 indicates that 1,885 were for Hoover four years ago and 6,989 were for Roosevelt then.

"The present standing represents only the first three short laps in a race involving more than ten million ballots which The Literary Digest sent into every county and hamlet in the United States," he magazine states in its current issue.

The picture shows the scene in The Star office the morning of June 26—when the newspaper brought off its Arkansas Centennial Edition.

Five sections had been assembled—all but the “main news” which was then being run off the press—and you are looking at a stack of 25,000 eight-page sections.

Two months in the making, the production cost of this one edition was Seventeen Hundred Dollars—largest and finest newspaper in the history of the Red river country.

Its forms are knocked down.

Its type is destroyed.

Its engravings have gone into storage.

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

COWBOY OF SOUTH AMERICA

STATUES and stamps honor the character of the typical South American who helped develop that continent and liberate it from Spanish tyranny. He is the "gaucho," the cowboy who not only tended cattle, but was trapper, hunter, and pioneer over the broad pampas of South America. The gaucho is a survival of Spanish colonial days. Son of a Spanish father and Indian mother, he was more white than Indian, and became the pioneer of white civilization in the plains of Uruguay and Argentina. When word of revolution spread through the land in 1810, the gaucho was first to take up arms, load his horse with food and ammunition, and join the patriot armies. For more than a decade he fought, and finally gained independence. Today, he is the chief element in the agricultural development of Uruguay and Argentina. Uruguay honors her gaucho in a regular stamp of 1895, and an air-mail stamp of 1925. The former type is shown here.

Bierman Makes Tulane Power in Two Years.

He Quits Gridiron to Enter Business

But Is Lured Back by Tulane—Praises Jerry Dalrymple, Star End

This is the fourth of five articles on Bernie Bierman, football's foremost coach—by himself.

By BERNIE BIERMAN
Minnesota Coach Whose Teams Have Been Unbeaten in Three Years.
MINNEAPOLIS.—Although it was my choice to drop out of the profession when I left Montana in June, 1921, it is needless for me to say that I just couldn't shake my natural love for it. This was more particularly true when I was on the road throughout the northwest and having a little trouble selling bonds.

One day early in the summer of 1923, I reported at the Minneapolis office of my firm for the usual Monday gathering. There I was surprised to find a letter from Mississippi A. and M. It was an offer to join its athletic staff.

Not knowing anything about the setup at Mississippi A. and M., I wrote my old friend and schoolmate, Clark Shaughnessy, who was coaching at Tulane. Clark answered, but much to my surprise he asked me to join his staff at Tulane on a part-time basis.

That letter definitely put me back in the coaching game—this time to stay. There was a council of war in the Bierman household the night Shaughnessy's letter arrived. When Mrs. Bierman and I were married in 1921, we decided that my future was in the business world. I liked my bond job pretty well. I believed I would go somewhere in it, but I had to be away from home so much that the Mrs. didn't like it.

Bierman Miracle Worker at Mississippi A. and M.
I remained at Tulane as an assistant in three sports through 1923 and 1924. Shaughnessy used Dr. Henry L. Williams' tactics and style.

One of the most enjoyable falls I ever had came in 1924 when Dr. Williams, retired as a coach, came to New Orleans to pay us a visit. He could not stay away from the game. He got as much thrill as we did in donning old clothes and actually participating in directing the Tulane squad for important games.

"Doc" stayed with us for several weeks. He helped me plenty. Always an outstanding offensive genius, several years on the sidelines hadn't left him the least bit rusty.

All this time, Mississippi A. and M. hadn't given up its hope of some day getting me to affiliate with its athletic department. In the spring of 1925, I was offered the position as head coach. I spent two years at Mississippi A. and M.—1925 and 1926. Football was at a pretty low ebb when I took charge. Athletically-minded boys who turned out were pretty small. We played stiff schedules.

A game that stands out in my mind in my days at Mississippi A. and M. was that with Alabama's great team of 1926. We held that outfit to a 6-0 score. It was one of those "moral victories" you hear losers talk about.

I went back over every game and tried to pick out the spots where I had made mistakes.

Green Wave Cleans Up Under Obscure Coach
When the Tulane vacancy developed, I gave it some thought, because this school had built up quite a reputation in athletics. I didn't dream that the board would offer me the job, but I was invited to New Orleans for a conference.

I was one of many who received bids. Because men whose names and reputation meant much more than mine were in a receptive mood, I didn't figure that I would receive serious consideration.

Some weeks after I had my interview a committee from Tulane called me for a second conference. This time I was officially offered the post as head football coach. The upshot was that I accepted and the Bierman family, which in the meantime had been growing, moved to New Orleans in the summer of 1927.

There I spent five of the happiest years of my life.

My record at Tulane in 1927-8 wasn't anything to shout about, but I saw better days ahead.

Tulane won three straight Southern Conference championships. In conference competition the Green Wave was unbeaten through the seasons of 1929, '30, and '31. Our winning streak over that period was broken by Northwestern in the opening game of 1930. We had a real good team when we invaded Evanston, but the boys simply couldn't click. I believe that setback paid good dividends.

When the 1931 season practically was concluded, Tulane's football fame had become widespread. Having a natural weakness for worrying during the season, I was anything but at ease the week before our final game with Washington State. The Pasadena Rose Bowl invitation hinged on our beating the Cougars.

Dalrymple, Zimmerman Prize Tulane Products
It isn't necessary for me to go into detail about our meeting with Southern California on New Year's Day, 1932. Howard Jones' grand team swept us off our feet in the first half, but our boys never gave up. They made one of the most remarkable comebacks of any team I have ever had. We scored twice in the second half and had the Trojans scared. We lost but we were not disgraced.

I had a hand in developing many fine players at Tulane. I could give three years has brought Yale and Harvard up to meet the other member of the Big Three. New Haven and Cambridge definitely were on the rise last fall and will have strong combinations this trip.

Princeton will be no worse than last season, when the Tiger was unbeaten. Old Nassau's losses are offset by replacements who get in considerable time and practically replaced some of the veterans in 1935. For example, Jack White probably saw more service than Garry LeVan last season.

Army and Navy Strong
Army officials frankly admit that they expect one of the finest aggregations in the history of West Point. Lieutenant Tom Hamilton anticipates a good representative Navy team.

Pennsylvania has a senior squad and the potentialities of which are as great as any in the country. Syracuse expects to trim Colgate for a change. Although Carl Snavely is planning on playing 10 sophomores, Cornell has a real club in the making with the enthusiasm that comes with a new coach and deal. Columbia has a splendid outfit around a phenomenal sophomore named Luckman.

Fordham always is dangerous. New York University lost heavily, but hardly will be a pushover. They're singing, "This Is the Year" at Manhattan College, where Chick Mehan is overdue.

The young team which did so well under Jack Southernland at Pittsburgh in 1935 will profit by its experience and the teachings of one of the smartest drill masters in the sport.

Notre Dame will have one of its typical good teams, despite heavy losses. There always is a small army of reservists at South Bend.

A seven-team scrap is foreseen in the Western Conference, with Minnesota, Ohio State, Northwestern, Purdue, Iowa, Indiana, and Illinois out in front. Michigan is expected to strike back to some extent. Marquette is a powerful non-conference team.

It's True About Dixie
Southeastern Conference race appears to be pretty wide open, with Louisiana State, Auburn, Kentucky, Ole Miss, and Georgia Tech as the outstanding contenders and with Mississippi State, Vanderbilt, Georgia, Alabama, and Tulane given a good outside chance. Duke and North Carolina seem the class of the Southern Conference.

Southern Methodist, Texas Christian, and Rice will be back with a vim in the Southwest Conference.

All of the coaches, all of the critics, and more than half of the fans name the California Bears as champions of the Pacific Coast.

Washington and the University of Southern California, not to mention U. C. L. A., Stanford, and St. Mary's will have something to say about this, however. Oregon State had an exceptionally fine sophomore team last year, so should swing along at a rapid gait this season.

St. Mary's is to make its usual trip east. The Galloping Gaius battle Fordham at the Polo Grounds, October 24, and Marquette at Soldiers' Field, Chicago, on Friday night, October 30.

NEW FALL FASHIONS

as presented by
HOPE STAR

Last week a northeast wind cut the sticky summer cobwebs like a cool blue knife. There were acorns on the lawn three days ago. The insect chorus is fainter every evening and the martins have flown. Screens are still up but the dew falls earlier and a fire feels good at breakfast time.

The thud of footballs being booted around the vacant lot down the street may be heard in the late evenings.

Taken together these signs are infallible. Summer is packing her bags and Jack Frost is creeping from the north.

There are other tokens. Slip-covers are retreating to the attic. There's a rake on every well-dressed lawn. Windows look chilly without drapes and white shoes are worn only to the grocery store. And gentlemen are back in waistcoats, the children are going back to school....

and Hope's all turned out for FALL'.

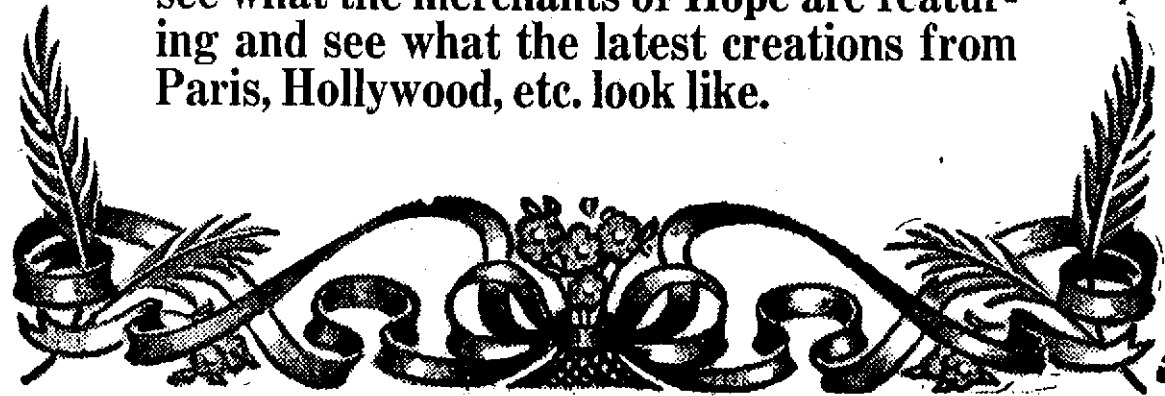

It's a brand-new season in Hope and all things are happening.

The whole town has shifted gears into high.

And now it's all here!

New Fall Fashions have arrived.

Shop this section thoroughly and you'll see what the merchants of Hope are featuring and see what the latest creations from Paris, Hollywood, etc. look like.

Regal Styles to Be New for Fall

Princess Lines Promises to Be "Royalty" of Fall Fashion

How can you be a princess royal, born a staunch American? It is a trick that takes little more than making up your mind, for the designers of the fashion world are ready to wave their magic wands over you. For Nellie Jones may become the Princess Eleanor when she dones the new princess fashions.

By far, one of the reigning fashions of the season, it is smart, young and becoming to slim, young figures. But be wise if you have the bearing of a queen, shun everything that smacks of the princess line.

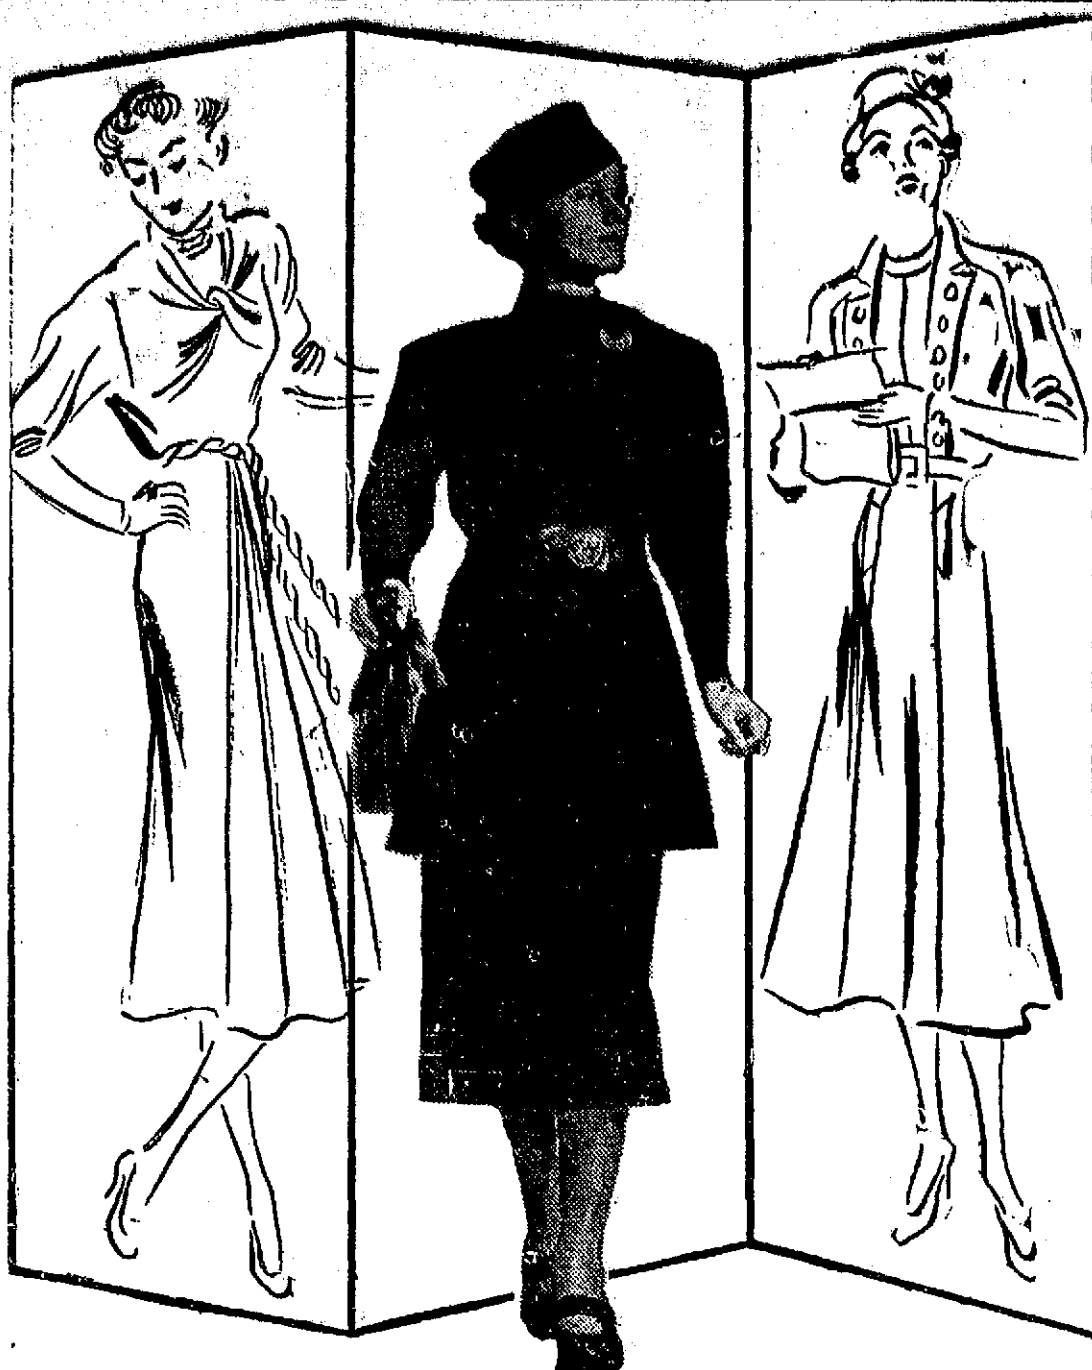

What exactly is the princess line? It is the one-piece dress that is fitted divinely through the waist to make slim things slimmer. . . it sheathes down over the hips so there are no hips at all, and it ends in a ripple of glory terminating the flared skirt.

These dresses are always unbelted for the excellent fitting makes a belt entirely superfluous.

The princess line is versatile enough to get around during all hours of the day. There are soft, wool frocks to catch the professor's eye and help grades go up in college. There are simple black frocks that are suitable for the office, and they are practically guaranteed to bring about a better salary! There are still other princess dresses for bridge and matinee and cocktails, and at night when the princess steps out. . . ah, there is the gown!

Royalty in fashions does not stop with dresses. The princess line is seen often in coats and in suits. And you may be sure the furs they are trimmed with are decidedly regal. Many princess line coats show as many buttons down the front as a prince shows medals!

On with the dynasty in fashions! Kingly colors are noted often in collections. They are called coronation colors. . . inspired by the coming coronation of King Edward of England. As Prince of Wales, the king influenced numerous fashions, and now with his coronation in the offing, watch for these glorious hues to revivify the horizon. The shades are jewel red, jewel blue, purple and gold. . . exquisite colors for evening.

Latest Fall Dresses Portray Glamour, Smart Tunic Frocks

FASHION plays a game this Autumn! A jolly, rollicking game. . . that harks back to the days of little-girlhood. It is the game of dressing up! Think back when you were eight and ten years old. One day you dressed up and played princess. Another day you wore the heels of elder sister and played grande dame. And that is what you will do again today!

some dresses tell you to be yourself, but just as many others tell you to be a glamorous lady out of history or a story book. You may develop a different personality for every day of the week according to the dress you wear!

Grandmother's Styles
One look at some of the newest dress styles will remind you of your grandmother's portrait painted in the glorious '80s. They are the dresses with waists so fitted that they become basques, and often button up the front just as the frocks of yesteryear. Leg-collections just as they did years ago. Collections just as they did years ago. Peplums have a way of jutting out at the back to remind you of a rustle of a bustle. If you have the figure for them, these quaint old-fashioned, new fashioned styles will make you as lovely a picture as your grandmother's portrait!

New Oriental Styles
Fashion experts turned to the East for the inspiration of the smart tunic frocks that are extensively shown. They are slim and straight like a mandarin girl's. . . or they flare widely in their effort to attain greater chic. The fabrics used are Oriental, too, in their feeling. There are rich, heavy silks, glowing metal cloths, fabrics that are masterpieces. Do not be afraid of the fashion for tunics. Many women say they are too short to wear them, but even the most petite women, will find a suitable tunic frock this season.

Looking Pleasant
Pleasant fashions are too pleasant to be given up. For dresses to wear to football games, to work in at the office or for college classroom there is no fashion amore buoying to the spirits. Bright color contrasts trace their origin to the gay, happy people of Salzburg. Full skirts and handings on skirts are another popular manifestation of this style.

Back to Directoire
Directoire and Empire stylings recall the day of glamour and chivalry. The influence makes those smartly draped dresses that make so much of a good figure.

Revolt Is Seen in Men's Hat Styles

Brims Are Now Much Wider and Crowns Are Much Lower

As far back as August, 1935 it became apparent that hat styles were due to come in for a decided change in their appearance. Little by little that change has come about and now for fall the entire picture is new!

Gene are the narrow, curled brims and a lower crown. This is true of all models. And with the new proportions comes a new trend, that of wearing them "off-the-face." This is done with the bound and well edge snaps as well as with the bomburg. You can see these new hats in all of Hope's stores.

Sports Hats
Here again, the entire trend is toward ease, comfort and most of all, simplicity. The rather odd looking sports lack with innumerable fancy pleats and queer-looking gadgets has almost entirely passed out of the picture. . . for which everyone should be thankful. There was a purpose for which the original sports back was designed. . . comfort. And now that designers have rediscovered this fundamental principle, useless fripperies have been eliminated.

The free-swing suit, perhaps, the first of all sports backs, returns the premier sports back style. The under-

Raglans "Top" in Men's Overcoats

Popular in Various Models, Semi-Drapes Also Set New Styles

"But," you may say, "there's nothing new about the raglan." That's perfectly true. The raglan sleeve can trace its origin back to Lord Raglan of Crimean war fame. However, it's a far call from the original raglan to the raglan of 1936. Each season sees some change of-arm bellows pleat, extending from the shoulders to the waist, gives all the freedom you could want, and because extra pleats and tucks couldn't add anything to this they're not there.

The second sports back of importance is the gusset sleeve, a free-swing with modifications. In this suit the under-arm pleat begins at the shoulder but stops after approximately nine inches.

fect, some improvement, sometimes hardly noticeable, in other cases startlingly new. The raglan is always new and never more so than today. One version has slash pockets and lapels that are regular notch or new peak style. It is loose fitting and gives a smart swagger effect.

The third raglan is the reversible. As the name implies, it is a coat that can be turned inside out. One side is generally tweed and the other, rainproof gabardine although a combination that is appearing in the higher priced groups combine sweet and camel's hair.

A five-ton truck in England recently was driven 100 miles with solid fuel mated from a coal. An estimated fuel saving of 60 per cent was recorded. Grant Thorburn, New York mail-maker, was the owner of the country's first seed store.

Skirts Higher to Show New Hosiery

Crepe Stockings Are Favored by Many—Novelties Are Also Noticed

Pedal extremities come in for their share in the fashion picture. In fact it is a lion's share, because skirts are creeping higher to expose them more.

Hosiery Colors Gay

Hosiery colors are having a revival day. Each season they add a grain of more gaiety. Copper tints, brick and bronze colors look on the bright side of life and do a lot to enliven the fashion picture. These colors are at their best when complemented by black, brown or green. Shades that are of a more neutral cast are best with the reds and eggplant and purple shades.

What About Texture

It has become the fashion to wear hosiery more and more sheer. Of course the true service weight retains its place but it is chosen only by the most conservative.

For general utility wear there are chiffrons that have been created to take it. The four-thread weight is considered the best complement for day and day out wear. The three-thread stockings come next. It is an afternoon stocking, though when well reinforced in heel, toe and welt, may be worn for utility purposes.

One and two thread stockings were designed for evening and evening alone. For their merit lies in beauty, not durability.

Crepe Stockings

Crepe stockings are an innovation that will be seen about town. The true crepe stocking is one in which the threads are twisted to a high degree to give a more firm, more fine surface. This reduces the liability of unsightly snags, and heart breaking runs. The high twisting tends to give better wear, too. For while a crepe stocking appears more sheer than others it is actually heavier because of the twisting.

With brighter toned stockings receiving attention there are those designers who believe women are ready to wear patterned woolen hosiery for winter days. This is an idea being developed which only time can prove true.

ROME, Italy. —(AP)—Carlo Zecchi, who is probably Mussolini's favorite pianist, is going to the United States this autumn for a recital tour. Zecchi has played three different times for Mussolini in the premier's home, Villa Torlonia.

Men's Belts

One of the prominent ideas in leather strapping this fall will be the wide braided belt in full grain cowhide. These have three, or four braids, and are finished off in rich, natural leather colors, and are furnished with bronze harness buckles. A second, distinctive buckle carries college colors enameled in the bronze and unlike most college color ideas is not so gaudy that only a freshman will wear it.

Glove Diversity

Just as interest in fashions this year centers at the waistline, interest in gloves centers at the wristline, with all manner of feminine details, such as buckles, bows, tabs through which hanks can be pulled, shirred and pleated sections. Color, too, comes to the fore, with wines, greens and leather tans following black, brown and gray. Lou'll find the two-tone effects gay accents to monotone frocks.

Claimant Applies for Estate After 30 Years

DAVENPORT, Iowa. —(AP)—After 30 years, a claimant has applied for the $500 estate of Lorenz Mueller who died here in 1906. Claiming the estate is Louis Mueller, Marion, Ind., who says he is a nephew of the deceased man. Before the estate can be paid over to him, however, court authorities have demanded unquestioned proof of the relationship.

Adventure Pulls at Heart of Man

Robinson Ventures in South Seas, Gets Many Letters

NEW YORK. —(AP)—A deep seated longing in the heart of the average American to sail around the world alone was disclosed recently by William Albert Robinson.

Of average appearance himself with a tanned, pleasant face, Robinson has had first hand experience on voyages of that sort. He's been around the world once with a single companion in the 32-foot ketch Svanap, he's rounded the Pacific (where the navy rescued him from the Galapagos archipelago after an attack of acute appendicitis) and is bound now on another expedition in a 60-foot schooner to the China seas.

From the fan letters I get, half the country must be sitting around in back yards thinking about expeditions to far lands in small boats," said Robinson, lolling in an overstuffed chair in a suite of a midtown hotel.

"Learn For Yourself"

"They wrote me by the hundred. They tell what good companions they would make or ask where they can get a boat and how free the Tahiti girls are with their favors.

"But the ones that write letters will never get there. You have to go out and learn how yourself."

Robinson was a young textile engineer just out of college in Massachusetts when he started to "learn how" seven years ago.

He bought the Svanap off $2,000 and in three years on the world trip spent another $5,000. He's made that up by writing books.

"I wouldn't advise many people to do it," he said. "It takes a certain mental outlook as well as physical ability and knowledge of boats."

Wife Going Along

Robinson has his own ideas about expeditions that infest the South seas. Members often spend their time carousing with liquor and native women, he asserts, then try to cash in on whatever publicity they can obtain.

As for himself, he takes pictures of natives in unspoiled regions and gathers other information of scientific value.

With Robinson on his trip through the China seas will sail his wife, who was with him also in the Pacific ocean expeditions to the Galapagos and to Tahiti. They will take passage to Singapore, buy a native teakwood schooner which he covets, refit it, and return home by way of the Cape of Good Hope.

Higher Lines Are Seen in New Shoes

Black and Brown Are the Leading Colors; Bronze Also Important

Footwear believes in aiming high in achieving its place in fashion for autumn. Any number of the newest shoes are cut so high that they begin to look like tiny boots! While they look new to the eye, they are nevertheless smart. But they must be chosen with discretion. Only those blessed with graceful slender ankles should wear them.

There are plenty of other high cut styles that are not so difficult to wear. For instance, there is the tie which is extremely high cut in the front, but down at the sides to give ankle relief.

There are step-in pumps that employ the same strategy. They have high tongues which climb up over the instep, but the sides slide down.

After cut, color is the next important factor in shoes. There are more novelties this season than ever before. Every wardrobe will include its black and brown, of course, but the fortunate wardrobes will also make a bid for such footwear shades as chardon, cayenne, green, aubergine, bronze and wine. The bronze is especially smart for dress with a bronze trimmed hat.

Marriage and Teaching Incompatible, Says One

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. —(AP)—A teacher since 1896 and the mother of two children herself, Mrs. Theresa Evans observes "marriage and a teaching career are not compatible."

"No woman can work hard all day at school and tend to the home properly in her off hours," Mrs. Evans declares. She says she "got by" because she was a widow and lived with her mother, "who really looked after my children."

Black Leading in Fall Color Parade

Other Colors Include Beige, Purple, Eggplant Shades and Green

Will you lead a colorful life this fall, or shall you be a beauty in black? The chic woman of Paris wears black almost as the American business man wears navy blue, but the American woman is scheduled to enter the game of playing with color this season.

The past summer showed so many women wearing black instead of the customary white, that many designers and authorities predict a great season for shades other than black. Please do not misunderstand, the best dress in every wardrobe, and the most dresses in the extensive wardrobe, will always be black, but when you have looked through the shops and seen the new colors you will realize that this is one season when you will show your colors.

Purples and Eggplant shades are new arrivals on the fashion scene. Trace them to the 1880 fashions, to the coronation, to the Directoire modes. It has been so long since these colors have had popularity that they are sure of a rousing welcome.

Beige is peeking over the horizon and bidding for popularity. It ensembles so perfectly with colors of every hue that it may become almost the basis of a wardrobe.

Gingerly colors are looked to for spice in the wardrobe. It is smart for complete frocks or coats or suits, and it is of equal importance for gloves and handbags.

Even though it isn't spring-time, many things are turning green... and there are many greens to turn to. Sage, silvery green, gray frolicsome green, deep woody green will make any wardrobe smarter, and make competitive ladies' eyes turn green with envy.

There were 750 municipal airports and 465 commercial airports in the United States as of August 1, 1936.

Fall Hats Show Higher Crowns, Feathers, Flowers for Trimming

THE MILLINERS have put their heads together this Fall to give the best collection that has been seen in years. Because it is so all embracing everyone may find the kind of hat that is most becoming to her. There are many, merry, mad styles that provoke the mirth of men, but there are just as many conservatives.

Height is one of the crowning achievements of the season. Crowns are constructed to soar above the brows to far greater heights than they have attained in a long, long while. There are those who believe this style to be mature, but once having viewed the new hats following this vogue, no woman can deny that they are young and exceedingly gay. Not only are the crowns high in sports hats, but in dress hats as well.

Some are of the postilion type, others are conical. There are enough variations to allow every woman to go high hat.

Turbans are Many

Turban types are as varied at the products of the proverbial pickle muller. Three of them have geographic importance.

The Persian turban is easy to wear and destined for popularity. It reveals the coiffure to an extent that women with beautiful curls will like. Egyptian turbans are designed to wear low over the ears. These are not quite so flattering and must be chosen with discretion and by all those women with almost classic features.

From Egypt and Persia hats move to France where they adopt a Napoleonic feeling. These off-face turbans and small turned-up brim hats are as mighty in style as the little corporal was in battle. These, thanks the designers, are easy to wear. Anyone with a good, unlined forehead may don them and feel well turned out. They make much of hair and eyes. There are several types, all off the face.

Bow turbans are still another type, and one which will probably be adopted in greater number than any of the other three. They are shown in the usual beloved turban type, adding a perky bow at practically any point, top, side, or back. Turbans are versatile enough to be worn with any costume. In felt, if it retains simple lines, the turban may be worn with tweeds and other woollens. In velvet, metals and stiff silks it is definitely a dressy hat.

Hats March Forward

The Forward march continues. Visor hats are too becoming to be set aside. Berets are also in the category of all-time becoming hats that pull forward over one eye. Boat brims are another type which carry this same theme.

Various Trimmings

Perhaps it is the influence of the '80s that makes trimmings on hats look so important. Scarcely a bonnet that does not show some sort of frou frou.

Feathers reach an all high, and all types of feathers, from quills to birds.

37,500 Miles Is Postman's Record

Oklahoman Has Walked Just That Far in the Last 15 Years

MEDFORD, Okla.—(AP)—If Clarence E. Warren hadn't been walking in circles, he would have walked one and one-half times around the world.

Warren is Medford's mail carrier. Recently he completed 15 years of service. Since he started carrying the mail on August 15, 1921, he has walked an average of 50 miles a week.

At that rate, Warren walked more than 2,500 miles a year, or 37,500 miles in 15 years.

Valentino's Wife Returns to Films

Jean Acker Gets Lucky Break on Set for Greta Garbo Film

By ROBBIN COONS

Associated Press Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD—Some months ago when Central Casting bureau staged a style parade to cut down its "dress extra" list and retain only the most eligible candidates, few recognized one smartly dressed blonde who stepped across the stage with the others and won, by judges' verdict, the right to a place on the list.

One reason so few identified her was that Jean Acker, in the days when she was a screen and stage star, had been a brunette. But mainly it was because the first Mrs. Rudolph Valentino had been in retirement, living on her income, for several years.

The other day Jean Acker got the first "break" she has had in her comeback career. A Greta Garbo set was crowded with extras, ready for a big ballet scene in "Camille." Leader of the ballet was Adrienne Matzenauer, daughter of the operatic prima donna—and then the word spread that Adrienne was ill. Director George Cukor, with delay threatening a cost of thousands of dollars, looked around the set and his eyes fell on a box peopled by dress extras. One of them was Jean Acker.

Gets the Part

Jean had been a dancer once, had danced with Valentino. Within an hour or so she had been rushed to "wardrobe," had done a hasty rehearsal, and they were shooting the scene.

"Mr. Cukor was grand to me," she says, "and my gang—they were wonderful, applauding after I'd finished." "My gang" referred to the other extras. Miss Acker is proud to be "starting again at the bottom."

Once she drew $3,500 a week on the stage, after leaving films, and her salary in pictures was substantial. She retired with some $300,000—and then came 1929.

"I had enough left to live, very conservatively, for awhile," she says, "and then I had to go to work. I didn't want to intrude on my friends, or bother them. I had some nice clothes, so I turned to extra work. I hoped that if I were around, I would be seen. That's better than waiting for 'something big' to happen."

Reveres Valentino

"And I'm happy. I have a little work. I'd like to get back into bigger parts—I think I could be a cross between a Joan Blondell and a Genevieve Tobin, playing sophisticated but not 'hard' characters."

"But even if I keep on as I am, I'll still be happy. I'm philosophical about things now."

She can talk about her own misfortunes brightly, but she does not like to talk about Valentino. They say she is the only woman who still goes regularly to visit his tomb in the Hollywood cemetery, but she does not speak of that either, except to say that she is "Irish and sentimental."

Once she refused an offer of $25,000 for a story on the late "great lover." She could use the money now, she says, but there still has been no authorized Valentino story with her byline.

King's Mistress Frets at Freckles

Madame Lupescu Worries Balkans, While Freckles Worry Her

By the Associated Press

Mme. Magda Lupescu, object of gossip and headshaking again in the Balkans following a turnover in the Rumanian cabinet, has worries of her own.

First, there are the freckles. The few privileged Rumanians who have met their country's "unworn queen" say that freckles are one of her most distinguishing characteristics, aside from flaming red hair. Her royal friend, King Carol, rather likes the freckles, they add, and considers that they enhance her beauty. But she wants none of them and has tried all sorts of lotions and creams to get rid of them.

Dresses "To King's Taste"

Then Mme. Lupescu—"Bibi" to the king—has always to think of the agitation against her by those who dislike her race, her reported political activities or her position as Carol's companion.

But political worries haven't kept Mme. Lupescu from a lively interest in hats and gowns.

Experts class the Jewish red head as the best dressed and most bejeweled woman in Rumania.

Information from Buchaistr is that she has a predilection for elaborate French robes, ordering a dozen at a time. Couturiers say she generally selects close-fitting gowns of rich dark materials which set off the beauty of her figure as well as of her face and hair.

"I wonder if the King will like me in this," she asks. And the dress-maker replies:

"Oh, certainly, madam. It is just to his majesty's taste."

Guard Accompanies Her

Shopping along the boulevards in Buchaistr, Mme. Lupescu is rarely alone. There's always the chance that someone who disapproves strongly of her relationship with the King might take direct action. So Colonel Ernest Urardinu, prefect of the royal palace and one of King Carol's right hand men, accompanies her.

Once she was seen, arm in arm with the colonel, on the fashionable Culea Victoriei where he selected his fine

Garter Comfort

Garters will be popular in the featherweight styles, which won acceptance during the summer. These are narrower than usual, and extremely comfortable when worn, as garters should be, with the clasp pad to the inner side of the leg. The webs duplicate popular suspender webs, and it is a good idea to match your garters to your suspenders. Garters, incidentally, preserve a trim cuffline for the high rise trousers, and are popular for this purpose.

Light Handbags

There is nothing radically different about this season's handbag fashions, because they are in favor of a refined simplicity which is expressed in the elegance of leather and color, rather than in trimmings. Although black is always the most dependable color, nevertheless, as the season goes on, you will be seeing "leather" tones of brown, perfectly beautiful greens, wines, and grays stitched with color.

The motor of a light plane of British manufacture is started by pulling a cord, in the same manner as that of an outboard motor boat.

The 3,000,000 miles of highway in the United States would permit an individual motorist to drive for 300 years at the rate of 10,000 miles yearly without ever doubling in his tracks.

Imported silk neckties.

"Twenty-five hundred lei (about $25)," said the salesman as he handed her the package.

"Oh, send the bill to the king, it will be all right," she replied.

Lingerie From New York

For silk stockings and lingerie, Madame Lupescu, friends report, sends to New York department stores. She likes the goods and workmanship there as well as the prices.

A great lover of phonograph music, she orders all her phonograph records from New York also. Every month or so she and the king make out a list of new ones to be purchased. A new radio-phonograph set, presented her by the king, provides broadcast entertainment.

Rarely seen abroad except on the shopping trips, Mme. Lupescu dwells in a palace in the fashionable Chaussee section of Buchaistr, guarded by armed men and detectives.

Child Stars Set New Fashion Mode

Children's Fall Fashions Show Influence Gained From Movies

If you notice the young daughter in the household standing before a mirror primping after a matinee at the movies, don't think she has suddenly become too vain. Think of how you, yourself, have cut a Hepburn fringe, or grown a Garbo bob after seeing your favorite star.

Then you will understand that the young lady has just seen Miss Shirley Temple, or June Withers, or Cora Sue Collins performing on the silver screen, and that is seeing possibilities in herself.

These young movie actresses are having a great deal to do with the improvement in children's clothes today. Manufacturers who are on the qui vive have seen the great possibilities that lie in the fashions which these famous young ladies wear in their pictures. It is now possible for the little darling in any household to wear the frocks that make Shirley Temple and her contemporaries so adorable.

Not only are their dresses and coats copied, but their hats as well. Every one knows with what perfect taste the young stars are turned out in their pictures so every mother's daughter who wears their copies will be dressed in the height of fashion and appropriateness.

The reign of princess styles carries through to juvenile frocks. Gingham dresses are another favorite. Plaids do a Highland fling in the woollens which they wear to school, and their dresses for parties and Sunday school have all the delicacy and charm of Shirley Temple.

Satin Lingerie

Lingerie follows consistently in the trend for more feminine, more elaborate apparel, and satin is fast becoming the favored fabric, either used alone, or embroidered, or trimmed with deep crepe lace. The desire for luxuriousness is most fully expressed in the nightgown made of crepe-black satin, the stain used inside to touch the body, the crepe forming the outside, with elaborate satin applique.

America Entertains Indian Midas

Entertained by Hollywood celebrities, thrilled by west coast scenes, Sir Yeshwant Rao Holkar, fabulously wealthy Maharajah of Indore, and his maharajah apparently were highly enjoying their tour of the United States, when this picture was snapped in San Francisco. One of the richest men in the world, the maharajah was especially interested in the movie colony, where he revealed that motion picture methods were improving in his own country.

Trend Toward Easy Fitting Styles Seen

Comfort Is First Consideration of Designers of Men's Clothes

During the past few years it has become evident that a decided change was occurring in the styling of men's clothes. Padded shoulders and fitted waistlines disappeared. Waist-high, form-fitting trousers went along with them. Little by little subtle changes were effected. Natural shoulders, high-rise, pleated trousers, soft-construction in jackets came about. More and more our designers fashioned men's clothes in the English manner . . . a manner that gives ease and comfort first consideration. Until today we see clothes that have changed the entire appearance of the American man. And it really has done just that! And there can be no doubt that nearly every man will like the new trend in clothing.

Double Breasted
Perhaps no other suit model can be credited with influencing the new trend more than the double breasted. Because it is dressy, and imparts a fashionable air to the wearer, men have taken to it in such a way that now double breasted account for more than one-half of all sales. And because so many men wanted the double breasted, it was necessary to change the lines of this model so that all men could wear it.

The result is a suit that more or less follows these lines: it has a lower collar line and reveals more of the shirt collar. It has a low gorge with a soft, natural drape and a full chest. The buttons are set lower and there is a soft "break" at the waist. All of these tailoring details combine to produce a feeling of relaxed ease and comfort. And because of the soft construction to the jacket, it can be worn with the lapels rolled to the bottom button, if you prefer.

Single Breasted
The drape effect is much in evidence in the single breasted suits, too. Jackets in both models are slightly longer, softer and altogether, much easier to wear.

The two-button version will, of course, be the one most men are interested in. University men are showing a slight preference for the three button. The latter suit the one that seems to be the best style has the notched-shawl effect lapels, natural shoulders, semi-drape and easy body lines.

Peaked lapels on single breasted jackets are another new note for fall. There are several variations that seem to be of equal style importance. First, there is the sharp slanting, sharply peaked lapel; then there are two models that seem to have a slight, graceful curve to the lapel and a shorter length notch, in the peak, if we make ourselves clear.

HATS RISE and SHINE

They come forward . . . or they are little off the face affairs . . . or they are berets that do new tricks to go everywhere with everything! Paris comes to America in Napoleonic toques that are perfect with the new dress-up fashions.

HAYNES BROS.

Corsets Are Now Seen as Necessity

Moulded Figure Is Required to Wear the New Fall Fashions

Correct corseting becomes one of the fashion commandments this season. With a silhouette of emphasized bustlines, higher, fitted waistlines and flowing skirts, just any foundation will not do.

Fitting is so important that many of the stores are going to greater length to give better service in that line. Women are urged to buy corsets only after they have had them fitted in the store. It is impossible to tell at the counter whether a corset is going to do all it should for one.

Girdles are well enough for the slim miss who needs just enough support to keep her firm. But even those girdles this season should be selected slightly longer than other seasons to preserve a nipped waist and a well moulded hip-line.

All-in-one garments are a favorite choice and this year they not only do an important duty, but they add further merit to their achievements by being as decorative as a bit of bridal lingerie.

Fall Shirts

Styles change in shirts perhaps more quickly than in anything else men wear. It is not unusual to see a complete switch to a new color, pattern or collar style take place in a short time. That such a change will occur this fall, there can be no doubt. And that change will be based upon three new developments. The first of these are the striped effects. The second is the new stripes that give checked effects. The third is the combining of dark shades with light shades.

Shirt designers have given us new wider-spaced stripes that have been the natural development from the popular British stripes. You'll remember that following these stripes came an avalanche of checks and plaids. Now in order to give men something new and at the same time retain these popular designs, novel striped-checks are here. Bold vertical stripes and horizontal crossing lines do the trick. The third development has to do with colors. Deep tones have become somewhat boring and a welcome shift has been made to intermediate shades, neutral blends in light-dark tones.

In spite of these colorful notes, fall shirts are somewhat restrained. Extremely bold checks have been toned down, the gingham check is an example.

A new device mounted inside the hub cap automatically keeps onto tires inflated to the proper degree.

Accessories

"Clothes make the man," goes the saying, to which might be added "Accessories make the clothes." Without smart accessories, costume jewelry, bow ties, the best ideas in suits and shirts can look incomplete.

Glamour Marks New Fur Coats

Gray to Be Leading Color —More Variety in Style Is Seen

A glorious return to glamour marks the fur coats for the coming season. As they are viewed in the shops and stores, there seems to be more variety in style than there has ever been. Up until a few seasons ago fur styles were limited to the very conservative, but this year marks a revival for them.

Variety in Pelts
There have been many new furs introduced this season, and some old favorites have turned up in new guises. For instance, that very good friend, lapin, is seen in its natural state, but it is just as often seen dyed to resemble mink, or Summer ermine.

A new gray fur, Bombay lamb, is seen often. It resembles krimmer but makes much less demand upon the pocketbook. Gray, by the way, is one of the colors, making a bid for great popularity in furs. It is seen in a dark tone called eel, and is most suitable in such skins as kid or lapin. With the popularity of gray, squirrel, krimmer, and gray Persian lamb are scheduled for importance.

Swaggers Are First
Every other coat one views in furs this season is a swagger. It is the darling of the mode, and the darling of every woman and girl who buys a fur coat. Swagger furs are found to give excellent wear. The very looseness of the coat relieves the pelts from the strain which fitting might subject them to. The length of swaggers varies with taste. They range from hip length to full length. The most popular, however, is the three-quarter length.

Electricity used at service stations throughout the country for all purposes costs $2,720,000 a month.

New Fall Coats Are Versatile, Princess Line to Be Featured

COATS are cutting capers this season! They line up on the fashion scene, the most charming bevy of beauties that have been seen in many years. At last there is real variety to be had in them. You can play the personality game in coat choosing as well as in dress choosing. A wide variety of styles is seen in the shops.

Majestic New Lines
Long live the princess line, queen of coats! It marks a coat as modern as H. C. Wells' recent motion picture! And beauty is not all it has. Princess coats give ample room for striding along city streets or country roads, and they are seen in dress coats as well as sports coats.

Directoire Capes
Another coat high in the fashion ranks is the Directoire type which was inspired by the militaristic modes of the Directoire. Capes are of fur, and wonder of wonders, they are detachable so they may be worn with other costumes. In this type of coat it is smartest to have the coat itself slim skirted to preserve smart proportions.

Mannish Mannerisms
For serious, tailored costumes women like to choose coats that resemble their husband's overcoat. Tailored revers softened with fur is a favorite style, and one that is especially liked by the younger set. Another mannish coat that gains in popularity every season is the balmainian. It is grand worn atop suits. Practically every store in town shows them.

Swaggers Carry On
Swaggers forever... that is the cry of women who like to combine real chic with comfort. It is an ageless coat, becoming alike to mother or daughter, co-ed or daygamer. The slim and the not so slim wear it equally well. When the collar is cozily furled there is no more snugly warm coat. This year many waggies have an accompanying belt which may or may not be worn. On very chilly days a belt helps hug the figure, adding warmth.

Light Hose Tones

It doesn't sound natural to hear "fall stocking colors will be lighter"—insofar as in the past, the lightest shades have been in the spring and summer, and the warmer, deeper shades in the fall and winter. However the coming season is seeing a reversal of so many fashions inclinations that you shouldn't be surprised at this hosiery news. Everything about these new colors has been especially created with the costume colors has been especially created with the costume colors of the fashion's season's definitely in mind. For instance, the more subtle beiges will do admirably with the eggplant and wine tones, the cinnamon shades and some of the browns which look metallic, will prove stunning when worn with bronze leather shoes, which are gaining acceptance rapidly.

Color for Baby

The primary thing to look for in infant's wear, is a complete consideration of details which make for utmost comfort and simplicity. And there are such details in practically everything now offered for infants. Aside from the practical aspects however, mothers, and those of us who buy baby gifts, are attracted by the colorful new fabrics, the perfectly adorable new prints copied from movie themes and cartoon strips, and the complete acceptance of vivid colors in infant wear, rather than the unanimously approved white of former years. Even in size of infant frocks, there is a delightful choice of yellows, blues, ranging to a open, pinks as deep as coral, and nursery greens, all embroidered and appliqued with other pastel and deep tones.

Big Season Ahead for Tunic Models

Styles Designed for More Useful Wear Will Predominate

Suits are an Autumn blessing! They lead double and triple lives for designers have taken heed of the cry that women have often made: "You get no wear from a Fall suit." This is one season when that cry certainly is not true. For every suit that has been fashioned is destined to lead a long life and useful one.

Suits have Topcoats
The most important suit to follow is that with a topcoat. That will insure you of plenty of warmth, for nine chances out of ten the collar on the coat will be of snugly fur. It is important that collars button high. Although fur revers are smart, they must also be able to fasten close to the neck in cold weather.

Most topcoats are cut along swagger lines, so that the jackets beneath are scheduled to get around a great deal for they are suitable to wear with any sports frock.

Jackets Button High
Further proof that a Fall suit will go right into winter and be plenty warm enough, is in the jacket. Most jackets button in soldierly fashion right up the front, terminating in a smart little club collar just under the chin. This gives double warmth over the chest where it is needed! Not only is this type of jacket the most practical, but it is also the smartest as far as fashion goes.

Linings, too, have been given more attention. Nearly all topcoats are interlined. When they are not, some of the stores are offering that service. Wear the coat as it is now, and when the mercury drops, your coat may be interlined.

Tuxedo Revers Suits
Tastes that run to the unusual, and want more than just a swagger coat (though there is nothing more fashionable) will cast their eye on the tuxedo revers suits which are in practically every collection in town.

In these the silhouette is generally swagger, though there are a few of the fitted types, and the fur trimming is an elongated collar which ends at the hem of the coat. It is a lavish design, and is in evidence in long haired and flat furs. Slim figures wear this type of suit most becomingly.

Tunic Type Suits
The tunic suit is fashion's latest contribution. It is a dressy affair which may or may not be fur trimmed. This jacket is always fitted, sometimes belted, sometimes unbelted, but always the last word in smartness. Four piece suits consisting of topcoat, jacket, and two skirts, one to contrast and one to match are the choice of the wardrobe crafty, for they are a wardrobe in themselves.

Varied Blouses

We don't believe that there will be one smart looking girl or woman this year, who doesn't have a suit! And you can readily see that a statement like that makes blouses equally important. There are many new style notes in them, which you will want to look for when you do your blouse shopping. Necklines are far from simple, insofar as detailing is concerned, because they tie in many ways, with "shoestrings," leather bows, velvet bows, and self fabric scarfs. Tyrol influence still holds sway, too, expressed in deep pointed collars, very often embroidered in the corners, and a narrow border. Women will be delighted to find the youthful influence of jabots again, either separately, or as the ends of scarfs. And quite in line with suit silhouettes, are the full shoulders, either in plateau or Directoire lines. Contrasts are gained, too, in satin or velvet on crepe, to form pockets, ascots, or belts.

Forty per cent of all gasoline consumed by motor vehicles is used by trucks and buses.

Suspenders

New fall suspenders are featuring bright military stripes in narrow or semi narrow elastic webs. The majority of these are finished off with leather tabs, and are furnished with some sort of action back idea that keeps the braces comfortable on the shoulders in the midst of the most violent action. Some of the braces clip on to the trousers, instead of fastening on with tabs and buttons, and display sergeant stripe buckles to finish out the regimental idea.

Ties Get Gayer

While ties may be many and numerous, and will feature fall jacquards of silk, the well dressed man who follows the regimental idea can get in one or two ties of regimental stripes. Incidentally, the man who doesn't care for such complete regimentation as stripes will offer, can look to plaids for style inspiration. Shorts, socks, and other accessories naturally blossom out in plaids in fall, and this season they will go well with the many suits featuring squarish Glen Urquhardt checks.
